MAKEUP WORK & LATE WORK :

A student who misses assigned work due to an absence should arrange to make up work within five (5) days of absence.

An assignment with a due date made prior to the absence is due upon the student's return to school.
Teachers may use professional discretion in rescheduling any important test(s) for a student who missed essential class review during the absence. A one-time penalty of fifteen points may be assessed for late work.

Upon the student missing an assignment deadline, the teacher will contact the parent to establish a new final deadline. A teacher must speak directly with a parent prior to assigning a zero for any major assignment.

Permanent 0's on assignments can have a serious effect on a student's average. Your child may have a 0 as the result of missed work from a recent absence. Since the work may still be made up, then he/she must speak with me immediately.
